Guest Posts

Thank you for your interest in writing a guest post for the “Stories from the Heart” blog.

It is always a joy and pleasure to welcome original submissions of blog posts on faith, family, and friendships, including marriage, motherhood, grief, and more. Pieces must be concise, well-written, first-person stories that reflect your life and center around Christian beliefs. Please check out the “Statement of Faith” for clarity, if needed. These articles and posts will be shared on my publication page via my website as well as social media accounts. Please feel free to share the link as you choose.

Criteria includes:

Between 500-700 words

A real story about your own life or reflection based on your own personal experience

Author bio (25-100 words)

Clear picture of you (headshot)

Personal blog, website, social accounts (this is optional)

Please note that guests posts will not be compensated, however, your writing will gain lots of exposure and can be a great way for you to break into the writing realm and share your work! Posts from the same author will only be published once a quarter (every four months), then marketing charges may apply after the third post.

The fine print: Unfortunately, I cannot accept every post for publication. However, if your post is accepted, you will be giving me the right to edit for corrections and clarity. Once the post is published, you will be notified so you can share the piece as well. If you have published something elsewhere on the Internet that meets the above criteria which you would like to be considered for publication, please attach the link of the original piece.

*Please allow 5-10 days for a response. Appreciate your patience!
